ACTION: Final regulations.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: These regulations implement specific provisions of part D of the IDEA. On June 21, 2005, we published a notice of proposed rulemaking (NPRM) in the Federal Register (70 FR 35782) (NPRM) to amend the regulations governing the Assistance to States for the Education of Children with Disabilities Program; Preschool Grants for Children with Disabilities Program; and Service Obligations under Special Education—Personnel Development to Improve Services and Results for Children with Disabilities. The proposed regulations for Service Obligations under Special Education—Personnel Development to Improve Services and Results for Children with Disabilities in 34 CFR part 304 are described on pages 35817 through 35818 of the preamble to the NPRM. The text of the proposed regulations can be found on pages 35890 through 35892 of the NPRM.

In the preamble to the NPRM, the Secretary discussed the major changes proposed in that document to implement the provisions of the Service Obligations under Special Education—Personnel Development to Improve Services and Results for Children with Disabilities program, as specified in section 662(h) of the Act. These included the following:

- Clarifying in §§ 304.21 and 304.22 that stipends are not included in the cost of attendance and are not limited by the cap in § 304.22(b).
- Clarifying in § 304.30 that the Secretary is responsible for ensuring that scholars comply with the service obligation requirements.
- Describing in one section—§ 304.30—all of the requirements a scholar must meet.

As more fully explained in the Analysis of Comments and Changes section of this notice, these final regulations for part 304 contain several changes from the regulations proposed in the NPRM.

Major Changes in the Regulations

The following is a summary of the major substantive changes in these final regulations from the regulations proposed in the NPRM:

1. Eligible employment options for scholars have been expanded (§ 304.30(e)(3)).
2. The number of additional years allowed to fulfill a scholar's service obligation has been increased from three to five years (§ 304.30(f)(1)).

Analysis of Comments and Changes

In response to the Secretary's invitation in the NPRM, five parties submitted comments on the proposed regulations for the Service Obligations Under Special Education—Personnel Development to Improve Services and Results for Children with Disabilities (Personnel Development Program). An analysis of the comments and of the changes in the regulations since publication of the NPRM follows. We discuss substantive issues under the section to which they pertain. References to sections in this analysis are to those contained in the final regulations. The analysis generally does not address minor changes, including technical changes made to the language published in the NPRM, suggested changes the Secretary is not legally authorized to make under applicable statutory authority, or comments that express concerns of a general nature about the Department or other matters that are not directly relevant to these regulations.

Assurances that Must be Provided by Grantee (§ 304.23)

Comment: None.

Discussion: Upon further review, the Department has determined that, at the time of exit from the program, the grantee should provide the scholar with a list containing all of the scholar's obligations under § 304.30, and the scholar should certify that this list of obligations is correct. We believe that this requirement should be added because it clarifies that the grantees, which have the best access to this information, are responsible for sharing this information with the scholars.

Change: We have deleted the requirement contained in § 304.23(c) that the grantee must "establish policies and procedures for receiving and maintaining records of written certification from scholars." We have modified § 304.23(c) by adding new §§ 304.23(c)(1) and (2), which require the grantee to provide information to the scholar and specify that, upon receipt of this information, the scholar must provide written certification to the grantee that this information is correct.

Requirements for Scholar (§ 304.30(e))

Comment: A few commenters stated that the "majority of children" and the "majority of time" requirements in § 304.30(e)(1) and (2) cause hardship for some scholars. The commenters stated that scholars who provide direct services in early intervention and adaptive physical education are most impacted by these requirements because early intervention and adaptive physical education positions involve working primarily, or exclusively, in settings in which scholars provide educational services, but not necessarily special education services, to students with the full range of abilities and disabilities in a general education setting. The commenters recommended eliminating the current "majority of children" and the "majority of time" requirements in § 304.30(e)(1) and (2) and instead requiring only that scholars "provide special education and related services to children with disabilities * * *" consistent with section 662(h)(1) of the Act.

Discussion: The Department supports the provision of special education and related services and early intervention services in settings with nondisabled children. However, the Department believes that the limited funds available for the Personnel Development Program should be targeted to support and train scholars who, following completion of training, will be employed in positions (other than supervisory, postsecondary faculty, research, policy, technical assistance, program development, or administration) that meet the "majority of time" or the "majority of children" requirements in § 304.30(e)(1) and (2) to ensure that the need for qualified special education personnel can be met. The Department believes that these majority requirements are necessary to ensure that there are sufficient numbers of qualified personnel to provide the most effective special education, related services, and early intervention services to infants, toddlers, and children with disabilities.

Changes: None.

Comment: None.

Discussion: Upon internal review, the Department has determined that it would be helpful to define more precisely the term "majority," as it is used in § 304.30(e).

Changes: We have modified the language in § 304.30(e) to substitute the term "51 percent" for the term "majority" throughout this section.

Comment: A few commenters stated that the range of employment options to satisfy the service obligation requirements in § 304.30(e)(3) through (5) is too restrictive and should be expanded. The commenters stated that scholars should be allowed to satisfy their service obligation through work in other areas, such as policy, administration, professional development, technical assistance, and program development related to special education, related services, and early intervention services.

Discussion: The Department agrees that there may be situations in which an individual can fulfill his or her service obligation in a position that is not described in § 304.30(e), including positions involving policy, technical assistance, program development, or administration, when the individual spends at least 51 percent of his or her time performing work related to the training for which a scholarship was received.

Changes: We have deleted § 304.30(e)(4) and (5), and modified the language in § 304.30(e)(3) to clarify that, in addition to positions involving supervision, teaching at the postsecondary level, and research, a scholar may fulfill the scholar's service obligation in a position involving policy, technical assistance, program development, or administration when the scholar spends at least 51 percent of his or her time performing work related to the training for which a scholarship was received under section 662 of the Act.

Comment: A few commenters stated that recent Federal education policy, as articulated in the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 and the 2004 reauthorization of IDEA, focuses on addressing the needs and performance of children with disabilities within programs, policies, and procedures of the general education system. The commenters recommended that the Department expand the eligible employment options to include, under limited circumstances, employment that addresses the needs of children with disabilities within the broader context of prevention and intervention initiatives in the general education system that are designed to accommodate the needs of a wide range of children.

Discussion: The purpose of providing scholarships under the Personnel Development Program is to ensure that there are sufficient numbers of qualified personnel to provide special education, related services, and early intervention services to infants, toddlers, and children with disabilities. While scholarships under this program may be used to provide support for training and professional development on topics leading to the identification of children with disabilities (e.g., progress monitoring and response to intervention), we do not believe scholars should be permitted to satisfy their service obligation in positions that focus primarily on nondisabled students or nondisabled students who may be at risk of having a disability.

Changes: None.

Time Period (§ 304.30(f))

Comment: A few commenters suggested changing the length of the service obligation in § 304.30(f)(1) so that scholars who are unable to satisfy the "majority of children" or the "majority of time" requirement in any single year would either automatically be subject to one extra year of service, or, upon request, receive a deferral of up to two years.

Discussion: Section 304.30(f)(1) requires scholars to complete at least two years of service obligation for every academic year for which assistance was received and to complete their service obligation in not more than the sum of the number of years required plus three additional years. The Department recognizes that some employment circumstances may make it difficult for scholars to fulfill their service obligation, as defined in § 304.30(e), within this time period. While implementing the commenters' recommendations would be too complex and burdensome to administer and monitor, we believe it would be appropriate to expand the number of years that scholars will have to fulfill their service obligation.

Changes: We have revised § 304.30(f)(1) to allow all scholars five, instead of three, additional years to fulfill their service obligation.

Comment: A few commenters expressed concern that, when scholars who are qualified service providers before they enter an academic program (e.g., teachers returning to school for a masters degree) do not complete one academic year of study because of personal or professional reasons, they must repay their scholarship. The commenters stated that these scholars, who are already qualified to provide special education, related services, or early intervention services to children with disabilities, should be permitted to satisfy their obligation through service, rather than repaying the cost of the scholarship, even though they have not accumulated one year of academic credit, as required in § 304.30(f)(2).

Discussion: The Department believes that scholars are unlikely to make substantial gains in their knowledge and skills in less than one year such that they would be able to provide improved special education, related services, or early intervention services to infants, toddlers, and children with disabilities.

Changes: None.

Executive Order 12866

These final regulations have been reviewed by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) as a significant regulatory action in accordance with Executive Order 12866. Under the terms of the order we have assessed the potential costs and benefits of this regulatory action.

The potential costs associated with the final regulations are those resulting from statutory requirements and those we have determined to be necessary for administering this program effectively and efficiently.

In assessing the potential costs and benefits of these final regulations, we have determined that the benefits of the regulations justify the costs.

Summary of Potential Costs and Benefits

Service Obligation Tracking Burden

The statutory change incorporated in these final regulations, which shifts the burden for ensuring that scholars comply with their service obligation from grantees to the Secretary, was not specifically addressed in the Summary of potential costs and benefits section contained in the NPRM because this change does not impose any additional burden on grantees, and will not result in any significant additional costs or benefits.

We include additional discussion of potential costs and benefits in the section of this preamble titled Analysis of Comment and Changes.

Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995

The Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995 does not require you to respond to a collection of information unless it displays a valid OMB control number. The collection of information in these final regulations has been approved by OMB under OMB control number 1820-0622. We also display this OMB control number in these final regulations at the end of the affected sections of the regulations.

The clarification of the written certification requirement from the scholar in § 304.23(c)(2) was not discussed in the NPRM but has been added to the final regulations. This imposes a new information collection requirement, however, it does not fall under the Paperwork Reduction Act's definition of "information" as explained in 5 CFR 1320.3(h).

Intergovernmental Review

This program is subject to the requirements of Executive Order 12372 and the regulations in 34 CFR part 79. The objective of the Executive order is to foster an intergovernmental partnership and a strengthened federalism by relying on processes developed by State and local governments for coordination and review of proposed Federal Financial assistance.

In accordance with the order, we intend this document to provide early notification of the Department's specific plans and actions for this program.

Assessment of Educational Impact

In the NPRM we requested comments on whether the proposed regulations would require transmission of information that any other agency or authority of the United States gathers or makes available.

Based on the response to the NPRM and on our review, we have determined that these final regulations do not require transmission of information that any other agency or authority of the United States gathers or makes available.

(iii) Any date on which the scholar discontinues enrollment in the course of study under § 304.30(a).

(5) The scholar must make payments to the Secretary that cover principal, interest, and collection costs according to a schedule established by the Secretary.

(6) Any amount of the scholarship that has not been repaid pursuant to paragraphs (j)(1) through (j)(5) of this section will constitute a debt owed to the United States that may be collected by the Secretary in accordance with 34 CFR part 30.

(Approved by the Office of Management and Budget under control number 1820-0622)

(Authority: 20 U.S.C. 1462(h))

(a) Based upon sufficient evidence to substantiate the grounds, the Secretary may grant an exception to the repayment requirement in § 304.30(j), in whole or part, if the scholar—

(1) Is unable to continue the course of study in § 304.30 or perform the service obligation because of a permanent disability; or

(2) Has died.

(b) Based upon sufficient evidence to substantiate the grounds, the Secretary may grant a deferral of the repayment requirement in § 304.30(j) during the time the scholar—

(1) Is engaging in a full-time course of study at an institution of higher education;

(2) Is serving on active duty as a member of the armed services of the United States;

(3) Is serving as a volunteer under the Peace Corps Act; or

(4) Is serving as a full-time volunteer under title I of the Domestic Volunteer Service Act of 1973.
